SUPPORTED LIVING COVID-19 POLICY

This policy has been written to cover the operational procedures necessary for JRH Support's supported living service to protect its service users, staff and visitors from the risks presented by COVID-19 infection.

How is COVID-19 spread?

People can catch COVID-19 from others who have the virus.

The virus is highly infectious and moves from person to person in droplets from the nose or mouth which are spread when a person with COVID-19 coughs or exhales. In addition, the virus can survive for up to 72 hours out of the body on surfaces.

People can catch COVID-19 if they breathe in the droplets or touch infected surfaces and then touch their eyes, nose or mouth.

What are the symptoms?

The main symptoms are a high temperature, a new, continuous cough and a loss or change to your sense of smell or taste.

Infection control and prevention procedures

General adherence to high standards of infection prevention and control is the best way to prevent the person-to-person spread of COVID-19 and maximise the safety of staff, service users and visitors. To achieve this our infection control policies and procedures will be implemented in full, especially those related to effective hand hygiene, sanitization and environmental cleaning.

Team Managers should make sure that people:

- Cover their mouth and nose with a tissue or their sleeve (not their hands) when they cough or sneeze
- Put used tissues in the bin immediately
- Wash their hands with soap and water regularly for 20 seconds and use hand sanitizer gel (at least 60%alcohol) if soap and water are not available
- Avoid touching their eyes, nose and mouth with unwashed hands
- Clean and disinfect frequently touched objects and services

Team Managers must ensure that the properties they manage have the appropriate resources readily available such as hand sanitizer gels.

Environmental cleaning should be increased whilst the pandemic continues and there is a risk of transmission. Regular cleaning of frequently touched surfaces with a suitable disinfectant and cleanser should be carried out.

Changes in guidance on May 17th 2021

Our supported living service is aware that the coronavirus Regulations have been amended with changes in the guidance taking effect from 17th May 2021.

Our supported living service will keep in step with these changes in government policy in line with its own risk assessments with service user and staff safety being always of paramount importance.

As from this date all staff must still wear disposable face masks when supporting a service user in their property. Masks must be replaced for each service user supported

All JRH Support staff are now able to self-test for COVID-19 each week. Tests can be collected from the office and 4 tests for each staff member can be picked up at a time. Lateral flow tests are available for service users and visitors.

Vaccination

All supported living service users have now had both vaccines. Staff are strongly encouraged to have the vaccine but current law means this is not enforceable.

Staff health and self-isolation

Government strategy is to ask people to self-isolate in their homes where they have symptoms of COVID-19 infection or think that they might have the virus. This policy will continue for the foreseeable future and our supported living service will continue to implement it where it is required.

Staff who are unwell with suspected COVID-19 or who have come into contact with an infected individual or who share a household with someone who is unwell should not come to work but must comply with the latest government advice about self-isolating themselves in their home.

As from 19th July 2021 the guidance states that:

- Staff who have symptoms of infection should self-isolate by staying at home and not leave their house for seven days from when the symptoms started
- Staff who have not had both vaccines and share a property with a person who has symptoms must self-isolate for 10 days from the day the first person in the household became ill.
- Staff who have had both vaccines and share a property with a person who has symptoms will not be required to self-isolate as long as they have had a negative polymerase chain reaction (PCR) test and also taking daily negative lateral flow tests for a minimum of 7 days, and up to 10 days or completion of the identified self-isolation period. The decision to work in these circumstances should be made on a case-by-case basis, and only after a risk assessment has been completed.

All staff who are self-isolating or think they may need to self-isolate must contact their line-manager as soon as possible for advice or to notify them that they will not be in to work.

‘High-risk’ individuals

JRH Support is fully aware that there is published guidance for England and Wales on the protection of people who have conditions that make them ‘high-risk’ Click here.

High-risk individuals are subject to special 'shielding' arrangements. These are due to be eased from July, though everyone affected will be expected to take stringent precautions and not expose themselves to risk.

Service users and self-isolation

Where a service user develops the symptoms of COVID-19, they should isolate in their bedroom in the same way as if they had influenza. Staff should:

- Minimise the risk of transmission through safe working procedures and implementation of infection control policies
- Use personal protective equipment (PPE) for activities that bring them into close personal contact, such as washing and bathing, personal hygiene and contact with bodily fluids
- Use new PPE for each episode of care
- Treat waste as infectious and dispose of it according to the hazardous waste policies.

If more than one person in a property becomes infected, Team Managers and the Service Manager should identify ways to utilise all available human resources to ensure service users are supported and infection is kept to a minimum.

Where required, the service will seek additional advice from the local public health protection teams.

Our supported living service is following all official guidance on the use of PPE and we have good supplies of all required PPE.

Safeguarding

Our supported living service will continue to apply all measures to keep people safe in line with its current policies and local authority safeguarding authority procedures. It will continue to alert the local authority to any safeguarding issue and notify CQC in line with its current notification requirements and procedures.

The service will continue to exercise its duty of candour where it has made mistakes that have caused serious harm to service users.

Mental capacity and deprivation of liberty

Our supported living service is aware of the implications of the current situation for service users who lack mental capacity to understand the decisions that are being taken or to act in line with them. The service will do everything it can to ensure that it applies "best interests" principles in communicating with people without capacity and in taking the decisions that are required, including where it is evident that people are being deprived of their liberty.

Visiting

At times that visitors are allowed in properties, all visitors to a supported living property will be asked to observe recommended hygiene practices, using hand sanitizer when they enter the property and washing their hands during their visit. Visitors will also be asked to observe social distancing.

There may be times when government or local guidelines/policy forbid one household visiting another household. Staff will ensure this is implemented when necessary.
